

Meek's Comments Not Taken Lightly

Recently the nation of Eniarku returned to the MicroWiki community. Eniarku was formerly somewhat of a power in the Microworld. The self-titled Supreme Excecutive Commissioner of Eniarku, Comrade Hero Aaron Meek announced his return by issuing a long and scathing statement about the current state of the Micronational community.

In the statement, he criticized St. Charlie and A1 (Two of the most respected micronations in the community) for basically controlling the community since Erusia's death. Meek says about the leaders of these two nations, "Have they been good role models? For Sir Phillip Fish himself to say that 'if we don't like things, "tuff"', or for Mr. Reinhardt to say that America is known for its terrible education system, I do not believe that we want them to be running the community either."

He ended the statement by making a frightening comment about how New Europe, Eniarku and the Ohio Empire were joining forces to topple these nations from power. New Europe was formerly the strongest nation of the wiki, but they are no longer well liked. Turn to page 2 for more.

Problems continue to postpone Checkers Prelims

Computer problems on the end of the Holy Salanian Empire, and communication problems between YAN and Garagstan have forced the date of the Checkers Preliminaries further back into the week.

Meek: St. Charlie and A1 should be toppled

(From page 1) St. Charlie and A1 have not taken these comments well (for obvious reasons), and neither has the community. Mark Meehan of Nemkhavia said on Meek's comments, "The community now is at its most vibrant, its most diverse and (even if it doesn't (sic) seem this way) its most tolerant."
